Bergen-op-Zoom, September 8, N. S.

THE Enemy threw a great Number of Bombs laſt Night into the Town. The Seamen have had the good Luck to ruin entirely the Enemy's Battery which play'd upon Kyk-en-de-Pot, and in the Haven.

Bergen-op-Zoom, Sept. 9, N. S. This Morning the Enemy unmask'd four Batteries; the Firſt on the Cover'd Way near the Left Face of Utrecht, of four Guns, two of which fire on the Right Flank of the Baſtion of William, and two on the Right Face of the Pucelle: The Second on the Right Face of the Ravelin of Dedem, of three Guns, which fires on the Left Face of Cohorne and the Orillon, where they diſmounted our Guns, and killed us ſeveral Men: The Third on the Ruins of the Lunette of Zealand, of three Guns, which likewiſe fires on the Left Face of Cohorne: And the Fourth on the Covered Way between the Ravelin of Dedem and the Lunette of Utrecht, of three Guns, which batter the Right Flank of Pucelle, and we hourly expect other Batteries to open.

Bergen-op-Zoom, Sept. 10, N. S. The Enemy erected laſt Night three new Batteries, two on the Cover'd Way, and one upon Zealand; and we have alſo erected a new Battery upon Holland Baſtion, from whence we ſhall begin to fire upon them To morrow Morning, if not ſooner, and that in their Flank. Yeſterday in the Afternoon we ſprung one of the Enemy's Mines with good Succeſs. Count Lowendahl was Yeſterday in the Trenches, and in his Preſence ſome Men of a Detachment of Normandy came over to us. The Firing this Morning has been very hot on both Sides, but we have not ſuffered much by it.

Bergen-op-Zoom, Sept. 12. The Enemy batter the Baſtions of Cohorne and Pucelle, and the Ravelin of Dedem, and have two Guns bearing on the Flank of that of William.

Head Quarters at Richel, Sept. 11. There is no Alteration in this or the Enemy's Army, except that they have detached Royal Piedmont and Bourbon Buſſet, Cavalry, for Bergen-op-Zoom. For theſe three or four Days paſt there have been Reports, that the French King was to remove either as To-day or To-morrow; but we have now Intelligence that it is countermanded, and that he is to ſtay at his Quarters at Hamal till the 20th.

Hague, Sept. 12, N. S. The Siege of Bergen-op-Zoom ſeems at preſent to be brought to a Criſis, and it is generally imagined, that a few Days more will determine whether it can be taken or not. From the 6th Inſtant to the 9th, the Beſieged have blown up two Mines, which have ruined the Enemy's Works upon the Right and Left of the Lunette of Utrecht, and deſtroyed the Mines they had prepared againſt us. On the 9th in the Morning the Enemy unmask'd four Batteries, viz. two of three Pieces of Cannon, upon the Angle of the Counterſcarp, oppoſite to the Ravelin of Dedem, with which they batter the Orillons of the Baſtions of Pucelle, and Cohorne; and two of five Pieces of Cannon each, one cloſe to the Traverſe on the Left of the Lunette of Utrecht, to batter in Breach the Right Face of the Baſtion Pucelle; and the other cloſe to the Traverſe on the Right of the Lunette of Zealand, to batter in Breach the Left Face of the Baſtion Cohorne. It appears at firſt extraordinary, that they ſhould not make all their Efforts againſt the Ravelin of Dedem, but it ſeems that the Batteries upon the Orillons incommode them to that Degree, that they cannot pretend to batter the Ravelin in Breach, till they have diſmounted our Cannon upon the Orillons. But hitherto they have had ſo little Succeſs, that even their Battery againſt the Oriſſon of Pucelle is already diſmounted; and our Engineers aſſure us, that we need not be very uneaſy about the new Batteries of the Enemy, ſince they are not conconfiderable enough to do great Damage, and that they are too much ſtraitened upon their Ground, to encreaſe the Number of their Cannon. We are told that M. de Chanclos intends ſoon to remove his Camp from Oudenboſch to Roſendahl.

Lord Chamberlain's Office, Sept. 3, 1747.

The Court goes into Mourning on Sunday next the 6th Inſtant, for the late eldeſt Prince of Bevern, viz.
